

SubscribePast IssuesTranslate

Hey hi, coffee lover!

Please allow us to toot our own horn for a little bit. We are very proud to introduce not one, but TWO new coffees this week. That's twice the normal amount, people! Curious..? Take a break and peep what's "keen in coffee" this week.

NEW: Danilo Natural (Costa Rica)

This coffee is something else. You'll immediately notice its dairy-like thickness and stickiness. After recovering from that wonderfully strange, thick stickiness, you'll get hit with Danilo Natural's surprising flavour combination - bold mango notes, combined with sweet sugarcane and slightly tangy gooseberry make way for more sophisticated, soft flavours, such as white grape, cocoa nibs and plum.

Danilo Natural is named after the farmer that cultivated this lot: Danilo Salazar. Sadly, Danilo passed away last spring. Luckily, Danilo's son has taken over the plantation. So even though we won't be able to drink coffee touched by Danilo himself anymore, his spirit lives on in his beans. A true legacy coffee if there ever was one!

Order Danilo Natural now

NEW: Wibeti '21 (Ethiopia)

Aromatic, chocolatey, sweet, floral, fruity, fresh, bold, funky, juicy, silky, creamy, delicate... There almost aren't enough words in the English language to describe the depths of Wibeti's flavour profile. During the cupping, we found that it starts out with peachy flavour notes, but there were also clear hints of Ceylon black tea and cardamom, which gave our nostrils a lovely tickle. Wibeti has a medium body (but feels good about it) and a juicy freshness that comes from the elaborate washing process.

Wibeti hails from the Yirgacheffe region in Ethiopia and has a super distinct flavour profile that comes from the high altitude, fertile red-brown clay, their washing method and long fermentation in water tanks. All in all, a true classic with all the flavours that you could possibly want from a washed Ethiopian coffee.

Order Wibeti Now

Dutch Aeropress Championship: the food

As you should know by now, this Saturday (i.e. tomorrow), the Dutch Aeropress Championship will take place in Bar Bolsjewiek in Utrecht. Yay! What you don't know yet, is the wonderful menu that we'll be serving you... Check it out!

Website DAC 2021

Dutch Aeropress Championship: the DJ

Meet Walter Vooyo, coffee lover by day, DJ by night. Walter makes sure that you'll be able to shake your booty between heats and will use his bopping beats to create a true celebration after the Championship. For those lucky few who have been able to get a ticket, we'll see you Saturday. For those who didn't, well, we'll see you on our official DAC Instagram Stories. Either way, fun!

Follow Dutch Aeropress on Insta

We send you this email because you rock! You are one of our dear customers or you signed in to find out more about what we are doing at keencoffee.com.

Either way, thank you for keeping in touch!

Copyright © 2021 Keen Coffee 2020, All rights reserved.

Want to change how you receive these emails?
You can update your preferences or unsubscribe from this list.

